SHANGHAI TAKEN BY THE NATIONALISTS

NATIVE SECTION OF CITY IN HANDS OF SOUTHERN ARMY

Victorious Cantonese Armies Are Now Practically In Control—Feverish Activities In the Foreign Quarters Noticeable As the Yellow Skinned Soldiers Approach the City Walls—The Chinese General Offered No Resistance From Within—Is Believed Shantung Defender of the City Was Won Over To the Cause of the Invaders.

The Chinese Nationalists have entered the native city of Shanghai.

General Pi Shu-Chen, commander of the Northern forces in Shanghai, is reported to have taken refuge in the French concession.

The Cantonese have cut the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

The defense of Shanghai by the Northern Chinese armies was merely a phase of a struggle to stem the conquering sweep of the Nationalist armies of the Cantonese government whose capital now is at Hankow.

The fall of the city of the Southern or Nationalist armies, had been looked for momentarily, as the Northern forces had been hard pressed the past week and one by one strategic points fell into the hands of the attacking army.

The Nationalists also have done much "boring from within," at Shanghai. As the Nationalist troops came nearer the prize city, agitators became active, and only a few days ago a general strike was called to last until the Nationalists captured Shanghai. The strike in Shanghai last month was attributed to Cantonese agitators. It was quelled largely by the drastic method of summarily beheading agitators.

The capture of Lunghwa, which has been Stantungese military headquarters for the Shanghai area of occupation, means that Shanghai is virtually in Nationalist hands and that they will be able to walk into the Chinese sections of the city whenever they desire.

Another northern setback also took place in the capture of Changchow by the Cantonese, who thus have cut the Nanking-Shanghai railway, isolating the Shantungese in the Shanghai region.

The later stages of the advance on Shanghai from the south have been almost bloodless, altho firing was clearly audible in the outlying sections of the settlements Sunday night.

Thousands of retreating Shantungese passed around Shanghai Sunday.

Thousands of armed and unarmed soldiers are swarming thru the country outside the foreign settlements and every precaution has been taken to keep them out. Indications Sunday night were that there would be no fighting close to Shanghai.

General Pi Shu-Chen, the Shantung defender of Shanghai, it is rumored, has gone over to the Cantonese. It is stated that he sent a representative to General Ho Ying Ching, the southern commander, to discuss the conclusion of a truce in order to avoid fighting in the Shanghai area.

This, in connection with the fact that Shantung forces have made no attempt to hold the southern line descending on Shanghai, tends to confirm the belief in foreign military and well informed Chinese circles that some arrangement has been made regarding Shanghai between General Chang Ki-Shek, the Cantonese commander in chief and General Chan Tsung-Chang, governor of Shanghai.

whose whereabouts recently has been a mystery. Everything points to such an arrangement and there is even the possibility that there is an understanding between General Chang Kai-Shek and Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord.

Seven thousand retreating Shantung soldiers arrived outside the French concession Sunday, but made no attempt to enter, it was their presence that caused the French to close their wire barriers. British troops, began Monday to occupy the more remote British houses which are outside the settlement boundary.

The industrial situation in the city remains unchanged. Strikes show no signs of spreading.

The foreign forces available under the protection of the international settlement in Shanghai, now number about 20,000 trained men, the greater portion of which are British.

The American force consists of 1800 marines and 2000 blue jackets, but these men so far have been kept aboard U. S. warships and transports in the harbor.

The Japanese have 3000 fighting men in Shanghai and the French a somewhat smaller force.

Twenty-one warships of five foreign countries are lying off Shanghai ready to protect foreign lives and property.

Shanghai, China's biggest port, has a foreign population of nearly 40,000 persons, 3000 of whom are Americans. There are heavy foreign investments, Chinese in the city number 1,500,000.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Kiaunkiang, Kiangsi, as the result of rioting last Thursday between rival factions of the Nationalist party in which several persons were killed and wounded. The headquarters of the labor union, which is the extremist section of the Kuomintang, was wrecked. International women's day was celebrated in Nanking with mass meetings in which thousands of women participated.

Chief slogans at the meeting were "Equality of the Sexes," "Down with polygamy," "Down with infant marriage," "We want freedom of marriage and divorce," "Women remarrying should not be despised" and "Women should join in the revolution."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

McArthur—A second charge of murder has been filed by Prosecutor W. J. Jones, against Arthur Stout, who is to go on trial for the alleged slaying last November of his stepmother, Mrs. William Stout.

Cincinnati — A dead admirer, a wounded widow and a rejected suitor at large are the principals of a shooting tragedy Saturday night at the rooming house of Mrs. Belle Likes.

New Lexington — Funeral services were held today for James F. Conley 81, who died Saturday. His father, J. M. Conley was the founder of New Lexington and built the first house in 1817.

Youngstown —Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wilson are back from Cleveland minus diamond rings valued at $1,000 which was stolen from them in the Hotel Statler. A prowler who is supposed to have used a pass key ransacked five suites in the hotel and went off with $2,000 in cash and jewelry without awakening his victims.

Columbus—Governor Donahey disposed today of four more acts passed by the general assembly on which the ten day period for executive consideration elapses at midnight tonight.

He signed two of the measures and decided to let the other two become law without his signature.

The Roberts-Keifer act, making Armistice day, November 11, a holiday, was signed "with mental reservations."

WRITERS' DINNER.

Mrs. E. A. Allen, Mrs. Carl Ritz, Mrs. W. W. Robinson and Miss Nelle Weldon, Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, members of the Papyrus club, attended a dinner of the Theta Sigma Pi, at the Neil House, Columbus, Monday. Mrs. Inez Haynes Irwin, of New York, a noted author, gave an address on "The Writing Game."

REAL ESTATE DEAL.

DROWNED IN LITTLE WALNUT AT ASHVILLE

Ernest Eshman Lost His Life While at Work on C. & H. Railroad Bridge.

Ernest Eshman, aged 22, a young man employed by Ferguson & Edmondston, C. & H., construction contractors, was drowned in Little Walnut creek, at Ashville Saturday night about 12 o'clock.

He had gone out on a trestle to push some driftwood away, lost his balance fell in to the turbulent stream and was drowned. His body was carried down stream and was not recovered. Nothing is known of the family of the deceased, other than that he hailed from the state of Kentucky.

This is the second drowning at the same place in three months. William Truex lost his life there January 19, while pushing ice away. His body has not been recovered.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT TO YOUNG MAN

Rudolph Justice Will Lose Sight of Right Eye as Result of Bullet Wound.

Rudolph Justice, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Justice, a student in the high school, while out along Hargus creek Saturday afternoon near his home, met with a serious accident. He was handling a revolver and in some way discharged the weapon and the bullet entered his right eye. He was removed to the home of Marsh Barnes and Dr. D. V. Courtright was called and he ordered the boy taken to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, for treatment. The boy is in a serious condition and will lose the sight of his right eye.

Reports from the hospital are that there are no hopes for his recovery.

The X-Ray examination revealed that the ball passed straight thru the brain and lodged at the back of his head. The ball was not extracted.

A GOOD ADDRESS.

Sunday night at the First Methodist Episcopal church, despite the downpour of rain, a large congregation greeted Mayor George M. Fitzpatrick, who delivered an interesting address on "Circleville and What She is to You."

BANDITS WERE THORO.

Police Sergeant John Burns, of Chillicothe, has recovered from a scare that was unusual in the life of a policeman. It all happened when a man clad in B. V. D's, crept in to police station and made for the sergeant's desk.

The sergeant's pulse became normal however, when the man in question, Elias Fennessey, said he had been held up by two bandits, forced into their machine and taken to the City park where they stripped him of his clothes and $16 in bills.

Dodging thru streets and alleys, Fennessey finally made his way to police station. A neighbor took him home.

FLOOD COMING SCIOTO RIVER ON A RAMPAGE

River Road Inpassable, Traffic West of the River Cut Off —18 Foot Rise Expected.

Old Scioto has been acting mighty had in the past twenty-four hours. It has reached a stage of thirteen feet, six inches. Up to Sunday evening the rise of the river on the gauge showed six feet and Monday morning, four more feet of water was added. It will be eighteen feet by Tuesday morning if Weather Observer Alexander's prediction comes true. Local weather Observer Dr. H. C. Clarke was advised of this prediction this morning.

This is the highest stage the river has reached since the memorable flood of 1913, when the record of 24 feet was reached. The rise in the river here may go even higher than predicted, as the high levees and banks of dirt thrown along the east bank by the construction of the Chesapeake & Hocking railroad company, have virtually confined the river in a much narrower channel than it was before.

The waters will cut off a majority of the people in the western part of the county, as traffic on the roads has been cut off at Fox and also the road west of the river bridge, which floods at the twelve foot stage. Back water now covers the road at the six mile bridge north of this city on the Columbus pike, making it necessary to go by the way of Ashville to reach Columbus. The roads south of the city are still passable, but if the river goes over the eighteen foot stage, the Chillicothe pike will be blocked.

Construction work on the new railroad on the east side of the city from the Lindsey farm just north of this city to the southern corporation line has ceased. How much damage has been done cannot now be estimated. If the flood is not followed by high winds, there will not be much damage. All the tributaries of the Scioto are running bank full and this will add a considerable volume of water to the river in its lower stretches.

The rainfall in this section in the past twenty-four hours was one inch and twenty-seven hundredths.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Officers Corpus Proceeding. Little Swank, of Darbyville, sentenced to the county jail by Justice Friece for fifteen days last Friday for keeping his child out of school, beyond the limit of a permit, was released by Judge Adkins from jail Saturday on a habeas corpus proceeding filed by Attorney Thomas Renick. The probate court found the commitment defective in that no fine was assessed against the prisoner.

Merl Smith Trial On. Merl Smith, charged with robbery, having it is alleged heldup Fred Howard and taking from him the sum of $206, in Seyfert park, is being heard in common pleas court. Owing to the high waters a number of the jurymen called could not reach the court house and the matter of securing a jury had to be put off.

A LOTTERY WITHOUT A WINNER

By W. R. MOREHOUSE

Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

(There is presented herewith the first of a series of articles exposing the tactics of sharpers who are after your money.)

ALMOST unbelievable amounts are lost to the American people annually from unwise ventures. This loss, estimated at nearly one billion dollars a year, is accounted for when you take into consideration that practically all of the money "invested" in numerous fake schemes and half-baked projects is forfeited by the investors. In presenting this series of articles regarding sharp practices and various kinds of swindles we hope to prevent thousands of people from falling into the traps already set for them by irresponsible and unscrupulous promoters.

W. R. MOREHOUSE

Through the use of only actual cases selected from several thousand, it is hoped to prove conclusively the futility of taking a "gambler's chance" with your savings, for as in a lottery without a winner you are bound to lose. Much of the material here used has been supplied by the Better Business Bureaus throughout the United States which are non-profit organizations serving the investor without charge and acting wholly in the public interest. Read these cases and then file them away for future reference, for sooner or later you may find yourself on the verge of "taking a leap in the dark"—of speculating with your savings as the people here told about were inveigled into doing.

A "good front" has put over more crooked deals than any other one thing. Every irresponsible promoter specializes in putting on a "good front" in his dealings with those whom he fleeces out of their savings. Whether or not he is successful is due to a large degree on how good a front he is able to put on. In motion pictures, the sets, or "props" as they are called, supply the setting for the scenes. They are used to portray things that seem large, things that seem grand and beautiful. Peer behind those sets and what do you see there? You see that the attractive fronts are supported by braces made of the cheapest, knottiest and poorest timber imaginable.

They serve their purpose in the world of make-believe, but in real life you cannot afford to buy Satanic cunning they fall in line with their intended victim's likes and dislikes, his viewpoint and his hobby, and when they have gained his favor and trust they grow more and more confidential, presently taking a great interest in his welfare and happiness. Before long they are offering advice and pointing out how he can better his own interests by making a new disposition of his available cash or by selling his present good securities and buying others recommended by them.

Your promoter will draw upon your imagination and paint a picture of a scheme by which you can make thou-only good fronts. Your house must have real rooms behind it, your purchases and investments real values. In the field of wild-cat financing if you peer behind the "good front" which the promoter puts on you will find that it is supported only by deception, dishonesty and fraud.

Unscrupulous persons of the "good front" type are expert actors in the role of "big brother" to inexperienced investors with money at their command. As protector and advisor to the widow and the inexperienced, which they claim to be, they are in reality wolves in sheep's clothing.

Gaining the Victim's Confidence.
In personal appearance they are impressive. As conversationalists they are convincing. As students of the traits of human nature they rate high. In short, they know how to stalk their prey successfully. With

MORE HORSEPOWER FOR FARM RELIEF

All proposed plans have thus far failed to provide the farmer with farm relief by increasing his selling prices. Industry, however, met a somewhat similar situation by lowering the cost of production. A similar solution can be successfully applied to agriculture.

The increasing of production per worker on the farm is being met to a certain extent by using larger units of power, whether horse or mechanical. Where one man was using a single horse or team he is now using from 3 to 8 horses, thus increasing the ground covered from two to five times. By the use of larger power units hired labor can be reduced or eliminated.

An analysis of raising corn divides costs according to the following:

Land 50 percent
Labor 20 percent
Power 20 percent
Miscellaneous 10 percent

Of these items one can be considered stationary, namely, the land cost. Labor and power are variable and have been the main obstructions to lower production costs. Larger power units are doing much to decrease labor factors. Also, larger power units if used over larger farm areas can do much to lower the power percentage.

Professor J. B. Davidson, senior agricultural engineer, United States Department of Agriculture, summing up investigational work in 36 states, offers this equation for farming:

$1 = \frac{(S - C)Q}{P}$
When "1" equals income
"S" is selling price
"C" is cost of production
"Q" is the quantity of production

Professor Davidson states: "Where quantity of production is held uppermost one finds prosperous farmers who plan to farm more acres without increasing the overhead."

Corn controls central western agriculture. In that area the acreage one man can farm is dependent on the number he can cultivate. With the single row cultivator he was unable to cultivate more than four to seven acres per day. The two row cultivator doubled this amount. Three and four row cultivators are now on the market—even six row were used this season. It cultivates fifty acres per day

OHIO ASSOCIATION BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Columbus, March 19.—The Fifth Annual Ohio Athletic Association Basketball Tournament opened at the Coliseum Friday afternoon with 17 teams contending for championship honors to be awarded in two classes.

Eight teams were entered in class "A," the major section, while nine remained in the race for the class "B" title.

Only class "B" games were played during the afternoon. First class "A" game was played by Dover and Mansfield High School at 7 p. m. and resulted Dover 23, Mansfield 16.

Oberlin, of the northeastern section, last year's class "B" champions, won the first game by defeating Toronto, of the eastern section, 25 to 12.

In the second game Hyatts High School, central district champ, trounced Convo, of the northwestern section, 34 to 14.

Kent State Normal School won the third game from Tipton, of the third game from Tipton, 30 to 20.

High school pennants and colors were much in evidence about the huge coliseum. Organized rooting sections shouted for the teams representing their schools.

Crossing the Styx

Styx, in classical mythology, was the chief river of the lower region, round which it flowed seven times. All shades of those who had departed their earthly lives had to cross this river, and Charon, the boatman who ferried them across, charged a coin called an obol, for the service. Hence the custom of placing this coin in the mouth of the dead.

Concerning the Baby

Child experts say virtually every child is born with blue eyes. The permanent color does not appear until about three or four weeks after birth. Normal children always wear a contented expression during the first three months of life, and during the next three months they laugh aloud with great frequency. No matter how much a baby cries, it never sheds a tear until eight weeks old.

English as It Is Spoken

In the grade school a little girl was working a problem on the blackboard. A sidelong glance showed the teacher that she was placing the figures in column form. He asked: "Doris, are you subtracting or multiplying?" "Neither one, sir, I am 'plusing,'" was the reply.

SINGLE PLATE

Clutch Most Popular Type In England As In the United States.

In England and on the Continent, just as in the United States, the single plate type of clutch is the choice of designers who are bringing out new models or are incorporating important improvements to make their cars easier to handle, according to Joseph P. Noecker of the Noecker Motors Co., local Dodge Brothers dealers. "I have been interested in examining the specifications of foreign cars as published in the 1927 statistical issue of a prominent automobile engineering magazine," Mr. Noecker states. "Comparison with an old issue discloses that although the cone clutch was the favorite of a majority of British designers several years ago there has been during the last two or three years a great gain in popularity of the simple dry plate clutch. Of 117 different models 1927 British passenger cars fitted with cone, multiple disc and single plate clutches the proportion is cone, 33; multiple disc, 14; single plate, 70. Prominent English builders like Daimler, whose cars are recognized as truly fine cars throughout all the British Dominions and Colonies; Wolseley, on two 'fours' and one 'six,' not to mention both models of the well-known British Rolls-Royce—all use single plate clutches. Sunbeam, whose 24 cylinder, 1000 horse power, special car is now in Florida being tuned up by Major Seagrave who expects to cover the measured mile on Daytona beach at a speed well above 200 miles an hour, builds four six cylinder and two eight cylinder cars all fitted with single plated clutches to give smooth engagement, easy adjustment and easy gear shifting.

"In France we find a similar preference. Of 170 models produced by 73 makers 86 use the single plate clutch; 46, the multiple disc, and 36, the cone. With few exceptions, however, all the new models and all the old ones which have been re-designed by the builder to give maximum ease of handling are fitted with single plate clutches. Berliet uses the single plate on four out of five models; and Pnegot on three out of five. De Dion, Hispano-Suiza, Hotchkiss, Lorraine-Dietrich, Panhard (who produces an eight, a six and four different four-cylinder engines) and many other well known French builders use the single plate exclusively. Renault uses cone clutches on four four-cylinder models but adopted the single plate on his two sixes—one of his six cylinder stock cars holds a record of averaging over 110 miles per hour for 24 hours.

Gun Shot Both Round and Square Bullets

Los Angeles, Calif.—The deadly Marlin machine gun, capable of firing 16 bullets a minute, one of the prize exhibits in the recent trial of accused Mexican revolutionists, is a far cry from its first ancestor, invented in England away back in 1717. The modern gun may put it all over its forebear in speed and accuracy, but it hasn't inherited one classic feature which seems to have recommended the first one—that of being able to shoot square bullets against Turks and round ones against Christians.

G. E. Chase, in charge of the patent room in the Los Angeles public library, recently came across the specification for this first gun, granted to James Ruckle. It was a portable gun, or a machine called a "defense," and the description ran as follows:

"The gun is a revolver and is mounted on a tripod; it has a single barrel and a rotating chamber. The shape of the chambers and of the bullets may be changed or varied, some for shooting square bullets against Turks and others for shooting round bullets against Christians."

Lose Fortune by Failing to Pay Tax of 98 Cents

Wellington, Kan.—Seven two-acre tracts of land, whose owners lost title back in the nineties by failure to pay taxes of 98 cents per tract, now are valued at $100,000. The owners in 1893 considered the land worth about $12.50 an acre.

The discovery of oil is responsible. Benjamin Reitz, a Kansas pioneer, had a "feeling" the land would be valuable some day, and religiously kept up his tax payments, while his neighbors let theirs lag and finally lost title.

Then an oil company drilled a test well and found oil. This well now is pumping 1,200 barrels a day.

The distress of an impecunious friend is likely to be very touching.

NEW WORDS ALWAYS ARE MADE WELCOME

The American language has a new gem. To the vocabulary adorned by "mortician" and "cosmetician" may now be added the newcomer, "beautician," discovered in large gilt letters on the window of a New York beauty parlor. Just what is the fine shade of difference between a "cosmetician" and a "beautician" only the initiated know, but at any rate "beautician" is a bidder for lexicographers' recognition, and though old Dr. Sam Johnson may stir uneasily in his grave, the new word in all probability will be adopted by the craft, and mayhap ultimately will jimmy its way into the dictionary. After that it will remain only for the followers of the ancient and honorable art of plain and fancy shovelling to be dubbed "spadicians." It may detract some from the drama to have poor Yorick's skull tossed out by any save a grave digger, but the combination of "mortician" and "spadician" administering the last corporeal acts of mercy ought to go far to rob death of its victory and the grave of its sting.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

QUEER TAXES LEVIED ON PEOPLE OF WORLD

Humorous Levies Relic of Feudal Times.

Washington.—A delegation from the Virgin Islands recently appeared before a congressional committee and appealed for the removal of the export tax on sugar.

"That an export tax is unconstitutional is a matter of common knowledge to American news readers, and since the Virgin Islands belong to the United States, some may question why the delegation should peacefully plead for the removal of the levy when it could be attacked as unconstitutional from the time of its imposition," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society in this city.

"But the Constitution does not say that there shall be no tax on articles exported from the United States and its possessions. It declares that 'No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state.' And, according to the courts, state in this case, means a state, not a possession.

Export Tax Odd to Us.

"While an export tax seems odd to a citizen of the United States, it cannot compare with some of the humorous levies in foreign countries," continues the bulletin.

"Since feudal times the kings of England have received miscellaneous articles as taxes on valuable property.

"Two knives, six horseshoes and sixty-one nails are sent to the king's court by the city of London each year for the use of a parcel of land near the famous Strand, while a school occupying a piece of property near the Tower bridge, sends a bunch of roses. The land is worth $10,000, but as long as the roses are 'paid,' the school is permitted to continue in peaceful possession. Peppercorns (pepper berries) are paid by the Royal academy for its London site.

"To hold his land the owner of Aylesbury manor provides three geese if the king visits Aylesbury in the summer and three live eels if he goes there in the winter. The owner is also bound to put clean straw on the king's bedroom floor three times a year if the sovereign stops there. Straw on the bedroom floor was one of the luxuries of feudal times.

"The tenant of Copeland manor is required to hold the king's head should he get seasick while crossing the stormy waters of the English channel from Dover to Whitland bay.

"A crossbow is contributed by the ancient city of Chichester, while the lord of Bryandon, Dorset county, is bound to make a yearly presentation of a stringless bow and an unfeathered arrow for his majesty's use should he decide to war with Wales.

"Instead of paying an assessment in money, knights, to whom large parcels of feudal land were granted, were bound to perform 40 days' service in the king's military establishment and to equip themselves for duty.

"Property owners in England a few hundred years ago also accounted for the number of hearths and chimneys in their buildings, for each one of them was levied upon. Windows also were taxed and today one occasionally sees evidence of the evasion of this levy where old windows have been bricked up.

Blocks of Salt Paid Taxes.

"For centuries blocks of salt were sent to the rulers of China from the provinces bordering the sea to pay taxes. Rice and silk vied with salt in importance. Today, in some parts of the republic, rice supplements silver in payment of levies. In ancient times some tribes sent elephants' teeth while the Cantonese, it is related, made payment in crabs, frogs, snakes and crickets.

"Travelers from one city to another in China soon became familiar with other ways of raising revenue, than that collected from land owners. Likin or 'squeeze' stations, which might be compared with our nearly obsolete toll gates, are met with at frequent intervals along the highways. Eight of these stations are encountered during the 84-mile trip from Shanghai to Soochow. At each station one's effects are ransacked and, while every article is not taxed at each station, before the traveler reaches his destination at least three levies have been paid on each article.

"Tibetan taxes are usually paid in goods. Sheep, wool, meal and native cloth are principally used. In one section of the hilly country, the grass and water the Tibetan cattle consume are taxed, but not the cattle."

Plan Statue of Miles Standish at Plymouth

Plymouth, Mass.—Transfigured into bronze, Capt. Miles Standish, first soldier of the Pilgrim colony, may soon return to this little town, the birthplace of America.

Plans are under way here for the erection of a monument of the military leader of the early settlement. A site on the grounds of the Plymouth Memorial building is being considered.

In Duxbury, where Captain Standish once lived, a granite shaft already stands in his memory.

POOR HORSE COLLARS CAUSED ROME'S FALL

French Savant Advances an Original Theory.

Paris.—Did Rome fall because no public-spirited citizen knew enough to invent a harness that would adequately utilize horse power? This week joint in the armor of the fallen empires of antiquity was pointed out by Commandant Lefebvre des Noettes at a recent meeting of the French Institute of Anthropology.

Commandant des Noettes has made a complete survey of the history of the use of animal motive power from the early dawn of civilization. The harness of the ancients, he explained, had for its principal organ of traction a collar consisting of a leather band that went around the neck like a dog collar, without touching the shoulders, and which was attached to a wooden yoke just above the withers. This collar was so placed that it most effectively cut off the animal's wind by pressing on his windpipe and the large artery of the throat.

Almost Strangled Horses.

As soon as a team felt the weight of a chariot and its passengers exerting pressure on the collar they were forced to rear up their heads and dash off to save themselves from strangling. Hence the rampant attitude of all the horses depicted in ancient papyri and sculptures, declared Commandant des Noettes.

As a result of this drawback the great civilizations of the past were never able to get more than a fraction of the potential motive power from their horses. Oxtteams operating with a wooden yoke attached to the horns, not greatly different from that in use today, did not suffer from the oppressive collar and in consequence did most of what heavy hauling was done. Both oxen and horses were unshod and in consequence were not much good in rough ground.

Couldn't Haul Half a Ton.

Data obtained from translations of the Greek historian Xenophon and from the Theodosian code about a thousand years later, said Commandant des Noettes, indicate that no team of oxen in ancient times was ever considered capable of transporting a load of over half a ton.

Various ineffectual attempts were made to modify to better advantage the accepted type of harness, but not until after the era of Charlemagne, about the time of the beginning of the Capet dynasty in France, did some inventive genius devise a horse collar that was practical.

For six hundred years the water mill for grinding corn had failed to bring great benefit to the Romans, simply because it took numberless animals to draw enough grain to supply its needs. Where grain could not be transported in ships the arduous labor of hand grinding continued to be the order of the day. The lack of adequate transportation of raw products and the consequent dependence on slave labor, according to Commandant des Noettes, constituted the great weakness of the civilizations of the past. The invention of the modern harness gave to the world, he declared, a motive force more powerful and economical than slavery.

Famous Irish Castle Will Be Abandoned

Belfast.—A recent decision of the war office to abolish Carrickfergus castle as a military station makes very uncertain the future of one of the most historic spots in the British Isles.

The castle is situated on the shore of Belfast lough and was founded in 1128 by Sir John de Courcy, one of the Norman invaders, and was for centuries the scene of much strife between Ireland and England.

King William the Third landed there in 1690 on his way to the Boyne and some years later the French privateer Thurot was captured there.

Hats, Coats, Suits, Shown for Spring

New Paris Silhouette Will Feature Loose Bodice, Slender Skirt.

The liveliest topic of the mode just now is, of course, the speculation as to what the new season shall bring forth. There are the usual rumors of radical changes—there are the expected reports that the new fashions shall scarcely vary an iota from what has gone before. Perhaps this year's curiosity has been made a little keener than usual by Paul Poiret's unexpected espousal of the pantalette mode. But M. Poiret's bizarre prophecy is only one among many. It is not difficult, says a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, to forecast the next move of fashion and, indeed, a critical observation of what is being worn at such places as Nice, Cannes, Monte Carlo and Paris, will lead you to an accurate estimate of what the openings shall bring forth.

There is first the matter of hats, which are always of primary interest during the spring season. There was once a feeling that every spring opening was bound to bring radical changes in the shape and trimming of the feminine chapeau, but that sentiment now belongs to history. There are, of course, certain distinctive markings to the hats of each new season, but there has not been a radical change in the millinery mode since the first years after the war. For this season one of the new developments is the combining of fabric and straw, which the smart Paris modistes are now offering. In these combinations the trimming may be of the straw and the body of fabric, or that order may be reversed.

Coats, too, will evidence some distinct departures from the styles of last spring, yet not a few themes popular last year will again be continued. There are rumors current to the effect that the flare is once again to be an integral part of the smart spring coat, but you may dismiss these as part of the usual wild speculation that always occurs at this season of the year. The silhouette of your new spring coat must be unreservedly slim—there may be a suspicion of blousing about the waistline—there can be such chic details as the bolero and flat tiers, but the tendency of the coming season will be to emphasize the smartness of the straight, simple coat with tight sleeves.

Right here it may be said that the ensemble is emphatically due for another season, and it will find its smartest version in the short-jacketed type. A revival which is being authoritatively predicted is the renaissance of the two-piece suit, and here again the short jacket will dominate. Some of the smartest of these suits will be sports models made of effectively spotted catkins.

Summarizing the individual units of your spring wardrobe, this will be the situation: You will wear a hat whose brim is moderate or small, whose crown is fairly high and head-conforming, and which combines fabric and straw. Your coat will be slim and simple, its color will be conservative. It will gain both elaboration and evidence by means of its trimming, which will lean principally to embroidery. You may include a suit in your wardrobe. It should be a two-piece affair with a short jacket. And the ensemble, one of whose members is the hardy jumper, deserves a place in every chic itinerary.

Brown patent leather pumps are being worn with some costumes for afternoon, but the satin models are coming into wider use for evening. Perhaps they are also coming into use on wider feet, since some orthopedic authorities say the modern shoes tend to widen the foot.

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—George Edward Riffle, son of Sylvester and Auld Jones Riffle was born near Stoutsville, Ohio, Fairfield county, April 14, 1862, and departed this life Sunday, March 13, 1927, at the age of 64 years, ten months and 29 days. November 12, 1885, the deceased united in marriage with Eliza A. Steel. This union was blessed with six children, four sons and two daughters; Harry Riffle and Donald Riffle, of this city; Edward Sylvester and John Ezra who preceded him in death. The daughters are Mrs. John Ehnie, of Springfield; Mrs. Charles Jewell and Mrs. George Seall, both of this city, who with the mother and thirteen grandchildren will suffer the loss of a good husband and a loving father. Besides the immediate family he also leaves two sisters; Mrs. Laura E. Paxton of Springfield, Ohio and Mrs. Sarah B. Bell, of Circleville; also five half sisters and two half brothers; Mrs. Rose Ehnie, Miss Bess Riffle, Mrs. Josie Kinser, Mrs. Kinser, Mrs. Martha Martin and Millard Patrick and Bryan Riffle. Besides the relatives he also leaves a wide circle of friends who with the family will share in his loss. As to his church relation we learn while he was not affiliated with any one church, but are glad to learn that he had a love for all churches and when going to church we learn that he attended the United Brethren church and we are glad to know that he had become acquainted with Him who careth for us.

During his illness which brought in tense suffering the same he bore with great patience until the Great Physician came and relieved him and said unto him, come thou and enter into the joy of thy rest prepared from the foundation of the world for all who love and serve their Lord.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their sympathy and kindness, during the sickness and death of our dear husband and father also the undertaker, Mr. Fred Clark, and Rev. Green for his consoling words.

Mrs. George Riffle And Children.

VALVE WAS DOING A DOUBLE TRICK

Harvey S. Firestone, returning on the Paris from an inspection of his million-acre rubber plantation in Liberia, said to a New York reporter:

"Our plantation is superb, and the Liberian climate is superb, too, provided you observe the laws of hygiene. For the ignorant the climate may be dangerous, but what isn't dangerous if you're ignorant?"

"An Akron engineer came across a chap on a country road one day who was in charge of a traction engine that was stuck in the mud. The engineer got out of his car to lend a hand.

"'Friend,' he said, 'look at your gauge here. It only registers ten pounds. You'll never get out of the mud with that little bit of steam. Better wait till you have more.'"

"Ten pounds?" snarled the chap. "Ten pounds, hey? Why, mister, the safety valve is screwed down and that pointer is away around for the second time."

What shall we do? In youth we do not know, and in old age we can not remember.

BIG TIPS NOT GIVEN BY RICH, SAYS TAXI DRIVER.

The most generous tippers, according to an anonymous taxi driver who tells about "hack" driving in an article in this week's Liberty, come not from the fashionable or night-life districts of New York, but from the poorer districts. "You will probably be surprised," he says, "to learn that the best picking for taxie during the late hours is not Broadway or Park avenue, but along Second and Third avenues on the east side.

"There are hundreds of halls in that part of town where dances and weddings are held," he explains. "They shut down around 3 a. m. Many of the guests live away up in the Bronx or over in Brooklyn. They make up parties and ride in taxis. Strange to say, these East Side fares tip better than the swanks on Park avenue. They know nothing about the 10-percent custom and are generous with the driver.

"The Jews in New York are the greatest taxi riders of any race. Thou sands of them go to work every morning in cabs."

GRAFTING FRUIT TREES.

Grafting fruit trees is an old and useful art. Many fruit growers are finding it profitable to top graft trees of undesirable varieties, even after they come into bearing, to better varieties.

A successfully top-grafted tree, with its original root system unimpaired, will remain normal size for its age in 4 or 5 years after grafting.

Grafts should not be made on limbs more than two inches in diameter nor on old trees. Eight or ten years is about the age limit for profitable grafting.

"Grafting" says I. P. Lewis, assistant in horticulture at the Ohio Experiment station, "consists in taking a short piece of mature one year growth, called the cion, of the de sired variety, cutting this to a long tapering wedge and inserting this in a corresponding split in the limb or tree, called the stock, to be grafted. The inside edge of the bark, or cam bium layer, of cion and stock must join and grow together.

"All exposed surfaces are carefully covered with grafting wax to keep the wood from drying out. The graft ing is done as growth starts in the spring. The cions are cut while dor mant and kept in cool moist sawdust or soil until tree growth starts.

"Grafting wax is made by melting together 4 parts of rosin, 2 of bees wax, and 1 of tallow. The mixture is poured into cold water and worked like taffy until uniform in texture."

MOTHER WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT WILLIE

"Mother, I'm going to marry Willie Smith," said the careless young thing, bursting into the breakfast room at the early hour of eleven.

"Why, my dear child!" exploded her robust and en neglige parent. "One moment. You're going to do no such thing. I don't mind not knowing what he looks like, but I do mind knowing absolutely nothing whatever about him —what do you know?"

"Oh, he's all right, mother. I've inquired about his parents and ances tors, his college and clubs, and his allowance and salary."

"All of which, my dear, are of no importance whatever," answered her mother. "What I want to know is, does he ever think or talk bran or yeast or calories or vitamins?"

"Oh, mother darling, how could I possibly have overlooked that!" ex claimed the careless young thing as she hurried away to telephone Willie.

BONE OF MYSTERY SOUGHT AS MASCOT

The use of mascots, whether to bring good fortune or ward off evil, is age-old and universal. They were an element in the romance of the Middle ages, when the armored knight carried into battle for his protection and en couragement, the charm which his lady love had blessed with her prayers. In every clime, among people of all creeds and classes, some particular form of mascot has been individually or collectively cherished. At the head of the list perhaps may be placed the little bone found in the shoulder of the tiger which is supposed by Euro peans and natives alike to be power ful in attracting good luck and is eagerly sought after by those who be lieve in its value. Its apparent use lessness in the tiger's body—being "all upon its own" and "literally at a loose end"—has made its existence a mystery, which has begotten this be lief in its power.

SON MURDERS TO AVENGE MOTHER

Kills Brother's Wife While She Is Sitting in Barber's Chair.

Lincoln, Neb.—The day before Fame Mason was shot by her brother-in-law as she sat in a barber's chair at Leigh, Neb., she had gone with Frank Mason to Fremont, Neb., to decorate the graves of relatives. They have some pretty customs among the gypsy tribes and, in accordance with one of them, a lighted Christmas tree was placed by Fame Mason and her father-in-law, Frank, over the grave of his grandchild. Frank Mason's wife was buried nearby about a year ago.

The gypsy graves are well kept, some of them so beautifully, indeed, that people often drive out to the Ridge cemetery to view them.

There apparently was nothing overt in this visit of the gypsy chief, Frank Mason, and his daughter-in-law to in spire the wrath of his two sons, Duffy and Ted. It probably did, however, fan their growing anger into a blaze. They resented the fondness of their sixty-one-year-old father and chief for his eighteen-year-old daughter-in-law.

Fame Schafer Mason was not gypsy-born. She was married to Duffy Ma son, April 17, 1926, at Pierce, Neb. She had spent the greater part of her life on the road, as her parents are horse traders but not gypsies. Her husband left her a day after the mar riage and they had lived together only at intervals since. Duffy Mason says he did not wish to marry her.

Resented Intimacy.

For all that it is certain he re sented the growing intimacy between his father and the girl. They had been in Omaha together some time before the shooting and the chief had bought her some fineries that young girls love. A lot of money he paid for them, too, as much as $100. That means the profits of quite a bit of horse trading.

Chief Mason allowed he had a right to buy some things for his own daugh ter-in-law and he had a right to be in Omaha at the same time as Fame. That didn't square things with his sons, however. They put a different interpretation on his gifts to Fame.

So the night after Fame and Frank had placed the little lighted Christ mas tree over the body of the gypsy child Fame-Mason returned to the camp at Leigh. Her husband, Duffy Mason, said to her, according to the testimony, "Fame, I want you to go home. I don't want to live with you."

But Fame didn't go home. She started to prepare supper over the camp fire. The Masons had been liv ing in a covered wagon despite the zero weather.

Right here the ghost of the gypsy woman buried near the child out at Ridge cemetery enters the story. Ted Mason, who shot Fame a short time later, explains it this way:

"She comes back to camp all dolled up in some new clothes and starts to get supper. She used a skillet and some things my mother owned. I couldn't stand to see that girl touch the things my mother used to touch. And I told her so. And I told her what I thought about her and father. "She threw the things down on the ground, and ordered me out of the wagon."

Ted Mason went up to the town. Duffy Mason joined him there. Some time later they heard that Fame had come up to town, and was in the bar ber shop. Also, that their father was with her.

Ready for Hair Cut.

When the brothers entered the shop Fame Mason was seated in a chair ready for a hair cut. Frank Mason stood beside her. The tragedy moved quickly. Holding a revolver about six inches from the back of the girl's head, Ted Mason fired.

As she slumped in the chair Frank Mason caught her in his arms and kissed her. She died in his arms.

The brothers gave themselves up, and their father followed them to the town hall. They were his sons and he was ready to employ a lawyer to de fend them. They were of his tribe. He was their father and their chief.

They hurled back at him their ac cusations, their threats. He did not flinch. Turning to the officer who was guarding them he said, "Marshal, give Ted the gun, and see if he's got nerve enough to finish me."

"I don't want to shoot you," replied his son. "If I had wanted to kill you I could have done it long ago."

Frank Mason was deeply concerned with the funeral arrangements. He asked the undertaker to have a wom an assist in the preparing of the body and he and the undertaker sat up all night with it. "This is the code of ethics of our family," Mason ex plained.

As Fame's body was being prepared for removal to Schuyler, Neb., the home of her family, Frank Mason stood beside it and wept. He bent and kissed the lips of the dead woman. He urged that the remains be placed in a vault, saying that gypsies never bury their dead except in vaults. The re quest was not granted, her own peo ple taking the body and interring it in their own churchyard.

At the preliminary hearing the father told tearfully of event which led to the quarrel. He said he had happened to meet Fame in Omaha and that they registered at a hotel there, but in separate rooms; He spent $100 on clothes for her. His sons threatened to cut her new coat off her back if they should catch her wearing it.

From their cell in the dungeon of Schuyler jail, Ted and Duffy Mason talk freely of the quarrel and the crime. They received word that their father would defend them without any show of emotion. "I did not love my wife," says Duffy. "I was forced to marry her. I left her the next day and went West."

Had Quarreled.

Duffy said he had not seen the girl again until about a month before the shooting. He was requested by his brother to come home, so he rejoined the family wagon. He and his wife had quarreled for several days and he decided to ask for a divorce. His father reminded him that gypsies do not seek recourse to courts, but settle their own affairs, he said.

"I would have nothing to do with my wife," Duffy continued. "We talked it over with the county attor ney and he advised us to get along if we could. Then I began to notice that my dad was 'sweet' on her. He would give her money and they were always together. I didn't care. She was a bad woman, but I wouldn't have my father arrested, because we gypsies settle those things ourselves."

Ted Mason, apparently unworried by his plight, agrees with his brother. "She was worthless and bad. She promised to be awfully good to me if I would get Duffy to marry her."

The county attorney characterizes the Ma son brothers as "daredevils." Neither can read or write. Duffy asked that some one be allowed to read them newspaper reports of the crime, but was refused. "Dad is to blame for it all," says Ted. "He never gave us an education." This was be fore the preliminary, when told his father would appear against them. The father later changed his mind.

About a month before the killing Fame Mason was stabbed in the shoul der by a relative of her husband. She was taken secretly to Schuyler and hidden in a house. During the night Ted and Duffy spirited her away in the car and authorities heard no more of her until the killing.

Barricades to Protect Stores of Ammunition

Washington.—Barricades of earth and concrete which will send explo sions skyward are being built by the navy around ammunition stores, ac cording to Rear Admiral L. E. Gregory, chief of the bureau of yards and docks.

Navy experts believe property dam age and loss of life at the Lake Den mark (N. J.) arsenal explosion last summer would have been considerably less had the individual buildings been surrounded by barricades.

The first of the new barricades is now under construction at the York town (Va.) depot. It is planned to have their height about the same as the eaves of the building. In addition to reducing the hazard, Gregory said, the barricades would also lessen the distance depots must be located from cities and towns.

Indian Princes Prefer Their Shoes Squeaky

Bombay, India.—Squeaky shoes are in great demand by ruling Indian princes and chiefs, who have hit upon this as a means of impressing their barefooted subjects. The louder the shoes squeak the higher the price.

The idea of wearing leather soles which make their presence known with every step of the wearer originated by chance some time ago in the state of Junagadh.

One of the chiefs of the Chuasama tribe had purchased a new pair of shoes, and they creaked everlastingly as he strutted among the natives at festival gatherings. His subjects were more humble than ever. Some of the rajahs, ruling princes and the chiefs of numerous principalities have since taken to squeaking shoes, which are worn only upon ceremonial occasions.

American Woman Gets Home of Ambassadors

London.—Crewe house, the home of two successive American ambassadors to Great Britain, and which was re cently vacated when Ambassador Houghton moved to Morgan house, will shortly have another American chateau.

The new American mistress of the old residence, conspicuous among its Mayfair neighbors for its country resi dence appearance with its wide lawns and shade trees in the heart of Lon don, will be Mrs. Saxham Drury, who before her marriage last year was Miss Mabel Gerry.

Workers Find Strange Bird in Old Structure

New York.—Wreckers demol ishing the building on the site for the new building of the New York Athletic club came upon a strange crippled bird recently which defied identification even by that man of diversified knowledge, the foreman. The bird, perched on a rafter, re sembled a pigeon, but had a comb somewhat like a rooster.

The bird was taken to the West Forty-seventh police sta tion. A claw and a wing had been injured, the latter having been bound with a strip of ad hesive tape.

The bird has a dark gray breast, brown feathers at the neck and white specks around the tail.

AMUSEMENTS

The Orient—uncanny and myste rious always, is even more so in its present lay, as depicted in what is one of Lon Chaney's most startling vehicles of the screen, "The Road to Mandalay" now playing at the Met theater. It gets away from the mys terious Far East of conventional drama, and with a grim realism plunges into the land of today—and thru Singapore, melting pot of the races, Mandalay and the region around the Bay of Gengal it runs its weird gamut.

"The Road to Mandalay" one of Metro-Goldwyn's-Mayer's outstanding mystery stories of the year, presents Lon Chaney in a role that is more than unusually interesting. He ap pears in a disguise that eclipses al most anything he has done in the past for grim realism; and he is the center of a plot astoundingly daring in conception; one of the most powerful dramatic situations ever conceived by a playwright.

Daring Plot

It is a vivid story of a sea captain who degenerates into the sinister ruler of an Oriental underworld, to be redeemed thru a combination of cir cumstances almost unbelievable, but still, as worked out in the story, per fectly logical. A splendid cast sur rounds Chaney, who plays the sinis ter divekeeper of the story.

Lois Moran, of "Stella Dallas" fame, appears as the heroine, daugh ter of the grim underworld leader, who never knows the father who loves her from afar. Owen Moore appears as the dissolute "Admiral," a former naval officer gone to the dogs in Singa pore, and Kamiyama Sojin, famous delineator of Oriental types, is com pelling in his artistic but grim inter pretation of the Oriental satellite of the divekeeper. John George and other well known players appear, un der the direction of Tod Browning, famous for "The Unholy Three" and other big productions, and who directed the picture with infinite artistry from an original story by himself and Herman J. Mankiewicz, scenarized by Elliott Clawson.

DIVORCED WOMAN WHO WED U. S. PRESIDENT CAUSED MANY DUELS.

Andrew Jackson, the seventh Presi dent of the United States, fought many duels as the result of unjusti fied remarks that slandered his wife's reputation, according to Clifford Ray mond in an article in this week's Lib erty. "For thirty-seven years," Ray mond points out, "Andrew Jackson kept his dueling pistols in condition, particularly for anyone who said any thing derogatory to Mrs. Jackson.

"Jackson's conscience," the writer explains, "had the reproach that al tho he was a lawyer he unwittingly had allowed his wife to marry him be fore her divorce was completed, and in the scandalous politics and the heavy drinking at taverns that fact kept cropping out in slanders, jeers, and laughter over wine. It was a dangerous joke."

Explaining that Jackson first met his wife in Nashville, Tennessee, while she was still unhappily married to a Captain Lewis Robards, the writer goes on to say: "Robards went east and presently Nashville heard that the Virginia legislature had granted him a divorce. Jackson married Rachel. Two years later it was learned that Captain Robards had applied for divorce in the Mercer county Ken tucky court. The legislature of Vir ginia had not granted him a divorce but permission to sue for one, Jack son and his wife were remarried.

"Jackson undoubtedly realized that if he wished to protect his wife in community conventions he, as a law yer, should have been more careful. Later his pistols were to protect her."

CHICKS AND HENS NEED RANGE OR COD LIVER OIL

Cod-liver oil is one of the best sup plements to add to the ration of lay ing hens to insure winter egg produc tion, good shell texture, and reduce mortality, but it proves uneconomical when the birds have access to a good outside range.

Observations at the Ohio Experi ment station indicate that the feeding of cod liver oil may be discontinued when the birds are turned out in the spring to receive plenty of sunlight and free range.

The best supplement to any ration says R. M. Bethke, of the Experiment Station, is a luxuriant range. All laying flocks, especially the breeders, should be turned out as soon as the weather permits.

Early hatched chicks should also receive cod-liver oil while confined in doors. This will promote growth and protect against leg weakness and kindred ailments. With the advent of warm weather they too should be turned out on a good range.

The feeding of cod liver oil may be discontinued when they have access to direct sunlight and range. If the chicks are confined part of the time a part of the original amount of cod liver oil should be added to the feed. All the benefits of cod liver oil are supplied by a good range and sun light.

"Miniatures"

It is usually thought that the deri vation of miniature is from the Latin minimum (smallest), but this is not so. There is a verb miniate, to paint with vermillion, from the Latin miniare (minium, native cinnabar, red lead). The true sense of miniature is something painted in minium, red lead. Such paintings were usually small, hence the later meaning. The name was first applied to the ornamental red initial capitals in manuscripts.

Excellent Simile

The simile "naked as a needle" is taken from the writings of William Langland. In its original form the word "needle" is spelled "nedle." Our authority is the collection of similes edited by Paul Wiltach. There are few articles so devoid of adornment as a needle. It seemingly affords an excellent opportunity to coin a simile.

Maps Long in Use

It is not known who made the first map. It is probable that maps were made before writing of any sort was known. In the British museum there is a map made in clay over 4,000 years old. It is said of Ptolemy, who lived in the Second century, that he drew better maps than any one until after Columbus discovered America.

Art, a By-Product

It is one of the curiosities of the psychology of the artist that he is generally trying very hard to do something which has nothing to do with what he actually accomplishes; that the fundamental quality of his work seems to come out unconscious as a by-product of his conscious activity.—Roger Fry.

LUMBER CAMP SONGS INNOCENT DITTIES*Writer Traces History of Ancient Tunes.

Montreal.—Coincident with the decision of the Quebec government to appoint a committee of prominent men to study the speech of the French-Canadians with a view to putting a quietus once and forever on the slanderous opinions of tourists who believe, from contact with cab drivers and others, that the only language in French-Canada is a jargon of French and English, comes the publication by Mr. J. Murray Gibbon of Montreal of translations of thirty of the songs of French Canada.

Instead of the swaggering, blustering, devil-may-care lumberjack and river driver singing songs best heard in deserted districts of the forest and river, the secret is out at last, namely, that the songs most sung by these lumberjacks are in reality children's songs in the main, brought over from France hundreds of years ago, and the first white man's music to be heard in North America.

Traces Old Tunes.

"Canadian Folk Songs, Old and New," the book just published by Mr. Gibbon through Dutton & Co., New York, not only is an education to lovers of music who gain some idea of the spirit in the songs, but it contains a somewhat lengthy treatise on the history of the music. The translator believes that some of the tunes date back to the Twelfth century, others corresponding to those in the Tudor and Stuart periods in England. Strangest of all, it is stated that the tune of the famous old Scotch song, "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon," was discovered in a Seventeenth century manuscript in France.

"En Roulant Ma Boule," one of the favorite French Canadian songs was originally sung by French children at play-rolling balls. Another colorful selection has to do with a French trapper who saved the lives of his companions when threatened by the Iroquois, at the expense of his own. When his body was found, beside it lay a poem written in blood.

Purest of French.

The Quebec government points out that the purest of French is spoken by prominent French Canadians, even purer than that in France, and this book by Mr. Gibbon will no doubt also dissipate another mistaken impression that the simple French pastourelles were of questionable merit, held by people who are unable to read French.

Wild Horse Elimination Sought by Cattle Men

San Francisco.—The last of their type, wild horses of the once "wild" West are becoming victims of a campaign of extermination, because of their encroachments on civilization.

Thousands of these wild mustangs, descendants of those used by Indians, before the advent of the white man in the West, have roamed in small bands from their mountain wilderness into sparsely settled country to prey upon the grass of cattle and sheep ranges.

Stockmen, co-operating with forest rangers, have formed wild horse hunting parties, with the result that in Utah recently more than 1,000 were eliminated and in Nevada a campaign netted 1,238.

In the north coast section of California the wild horse problem has become so serious a conference has been called to outline plans for extermination. Similar action has been taken in Idaho and Montana. The horses are declared to be of no economic worth and their elimination of decided value to cattle and sheepmen.

Wisconsin "U" Leads
With 40,450 Students

Madison, Wis.—Wisconsin university leads the universities of the country in service. If figures in the current issue of a magazine devoted to education are correct, more individuals are now receiving instruction in and from the Badger institution than in other universities or colleges in the United States.

The Wisconsin state school, with a total of 40,450 students, including 8,220 full-time resident and 32,130 extension students, is well ahead of its nearest competitor, Columbia university of New York city, where there are 37,734 students.

The University of California ranks second to Wisconsin in the number of extension students, but has less than half the Wisconsin number in that branch. The western state leads all the others in full-time students registration, with 17,101.

Fruit Growers of Ozarks Will Have Banner Year

Kansas City, Mo.—Fruit growers in the Ozark mountains are to have one of the greatest years on record, according to report of one of the principal fruit growers' associations. More than 20,000 acres of strawberries will be under cultivation and from 2,500 to 3,000 carloads of berries are expected to be shipped to the city markets. Officers also stated that about 2,000 carloads of grapes would be shipped this year.

Mecca Drawing Well

Banjermasin, Borneo.—This year's pilgrimage to Mecca is drawing a record number of 10,000 faithful Moslems from the island alone. The pilgrimage will take approximately $4,000,000 out of the country.

EARLY FRUITSAre In Danger of Freezing Say Local Growers.

Local fruit growers are optimistic about the present summer-like weather lest in the event of a drop in temperature to the freezing point, the peaches, plums and cherry crops will be lost. Apples can withstand a greater amount of cold than the other fruits.

Unseasonable spring weather has affected the entire fruit crop of the state, the climatic conditions of the last few days having fostered the swelling of buds to the extent that a 20-degree drop in temperature would be disastrous to the young crop. Warm weather during the month of February was responsible for stimulating the fruitage of peach and cherry crops, and the buds are speedily developing in the present springlike weather.

The extent of damage from a cold wave would be proportioned geographically, the northern part of the state not suffering as much damage as the central and southern portions. Fruit crops in the southern portion are much farther advanced than the northern crops, which accounts for the difference in the amount of damage that can be done.

LEGALITY OF SEARCH WARRANT QUESTIONED

Attorney Contends a Hearing Should Be Held Before Such Warrants Are Issued.

Columbus, March 19.—Legal-ity of the search warrant in liquor cases, unless it has been issued by a judge after hearing evi- dence, is questioned by Attorney Edward J. Greely, who contends it is a dangerous practice and contrary to the constitution of the United States.

Test of the search warrant's use is sought by Mr. Greely in the case of Fred Ellison, 1461 North Sixth street, fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge Ma- haffey for possession of a half pint of liquor which was found in a dresser drawer at his home, searched by the city vice squad Feb. 27.

The warrant was illegal, in Mr. Greely's opinion, as it was obtained from the clerk of the mun- icipal court, without any hearing whatever. A complaint was all that was necessary to get the warrant, and no evidence was offered at the time to show why the residence should be entered at night, Mr. Greely said yesterday.

Approximately 60 per cent of search warrants issued by the municipal clerk are returned un- used, or without arrests being made, because of insufficient evi- dence or lack of information on the part of the complainant, ac- cording to Mr. Greely. Only about one-thirtieth of the present number of search warrants is- sued would be requested if a hearing of evidence would be necessary before a judge, he con- tended.

Mr. Greely, who plans to ap- peal the Ellison case, argued that the search warrant is the most dangerous instrument known to the law, in that persons whose homes are to be entered have no opportunity to be heard and that their private secrets and business become open to the scrutiny of an officer upon the slightest com- plaint.

THE EX-SERVICE MAN

In another column of this paper will be noticed the death of an ex-service man, who took his life, because of ill health and de- spondency. Practically every issue of city papers contains sim- ilar notices which are read and forgotten or entirely overlooked by the careless reader. Too many veterans of the World War are going this trip and many times the fault lies in the fact that they have not received the kind of treatment that they deserve and that was promised them at the time of their enlistment, or when they were drafted into the ser- vice.

Now when a veteran of the World War is disabled and can- not carry on and provide for him- self and family, he is advised to apply for compensation, which he is informed, is coming to him. After several attempts to secure this and undergoing examina- tions galore, before the veterans' bureau, he is finally turned down and told that his disability can- not be service connected.

This surely cannot be blamed onto the government of this great Republic as we all know that the money has been provided for them and is awaiting their claims. But the sad part of the proceed- ings is that someone at the head or foot or wherever they are, wishes to hold his job and fear- ing that if these men are given their compensation when they ask for it, it will be discovered that certain persons are not need- ed in the work and can be let go, as all the proceedings calls for clerical work and stalling, for which the Government pays large salaries. Too often these men are not the ones who have seen ac- tual service, nor have they been men who went into the fray will- ingly with the love of country in mind. And today they are profit- eering at the expense of the men who gave the best part of his life for their protection.

When will we awaken to the fact that a house cleaning is ab- solutely necessary?

"Folks may talk behind yoh back," said Uncle Eben, "but you won't hear 'em if you keeps goin' straight for- ward."—Washington Star.

Lakes' Definite Value
The Department of Agriculture says that large bodies of water, such as lakes, serve as a protection to plants against damage by autumn frosts. This is due to the heat stored during the summer. In the spring such bodies of water tend to retard the growth of plants and thus safe- guard them against late frosts.

STATIC MAY PROVE STORM WARNING AID

State of Atmosphere and Currents Seen Related.

Washington.—Static, the base of the radio fan who wants to get distant stations, may prove a valuable warning of such storms as the disastrous hurricane which struck Miami last September, according to a study made by the hydrographic office of the United States navy.

Beginning in March, 1924, the U. S. S. Kittery was used in a study of the value of weather maps in navigation. Before the experiments had been under way very long it was noticed that there was a very definite relation between the state of the atmosphere, as recorded in the data for weather maps broadcast from the naval radio station at Arlington, and the static. Later, when the weather maps were broadcast and received by means of the machine invented by C. Francis Jenkins, where a duplicate of the transmitted map is automatically drawn on the ship, it was found that the receiver could be used to record static.

The Jenkins machine is used in connection with a radio compass. The latter device is equipped with a loop antenna so that signals may be recorded from one definite direction. As the loop is rotated, and peaks of static in any direction are detected by the receiver, corresponding ink lines are drawn on the paper-covered revolving drum of the Jenkins machine. In the time that it takes the recording pen to travel from one end of the drum to the other the loop is turned through a complete circle, so that the paper gives a graphic picture of the static in any direction from the observer.

Ship in Path of Storm.

The Kittery was fortunate enough, from the scientific viewpoint, to be in the path of the Miami hurricane of September, which was preceded by another hurricane that swept over Bermuda. On September 14, when the Kittery was east of Nassau, the Bermuda hurricane was a few hundred miles to the northeast and the Miami hurricane was approaching St. Thomas. The maximum of static was from a direction between these two storms. As the ship sailed south, and the Miami storm came nearer, while the Bermuda one went out of range, the static in the direction of the former became more intense. Finally, on September 16, after the Kittery had reached Cape Haitien, at the northwest tip of Haiti, and had made necessary preparations for rough weather, the ship and the storm met. The static was terrific in all directions.

By September 18 the Kittery was at Guantanamo, Cuba, and the storm was 600 miles distant, having crossed the Florida peninsula. There was relatively little static, except in the direction of the storm. Following the low pressure area of the hurricane, came one of high pressure, and on the morning of September 24, when the Kittery was near St. Thomas, no static whatever was recorded, the only time during the entire month that such a condition prevailed. Then, as the vessel started to sail northwest again, toward Cape Hatteras, another disturbance began to develop near Grand Turk Island, and maximum static was recorded in its direction.

Hurricanes Develop Slowly.

Such hurricanes as the Miami one develop in the doldrums of the Atlantic ocean, off Cape Verde, the western tip of Africa, several weeks before they hit the United States. The Miami hurricane, for example, began about September 5, though it did not reach Florida until the 18th. It is suggested that a group of radio compass stations, located, perhaps, at San Juan, P. R., a point in the Barbados, and Trinidad, would be able to detect these storms as they approach. With three stations, where the lines from each cross would be the center of the storm, so that its position could be accurately plotted and sufficient time for warnings and preparation could be allowed.

The bureau of engineering of the Navy department is now working on a further attachment for the recording device which will record the intensity of the static in each direction, with which, it is expected still more reliable results may be obtained. An interesting fact learned in the data already obtained, however, with regard to the intensity of the static, is that it is much weaker than signals from powerful transmitting stations.

Prince of Wales Makes Yellow Shirts Possible

London.—Yellow hunting shirts, such as gentleman farmers wore during the Seventeenth century, are the big event of the present English hunting season.

London shopkeepers, who had to dust ancient boxes of the now revived style to meet the demand, are thanking the prince of Wales for the opportunity to unload what they have thought to be obsolete styles.

Ever since the prince appeared at the royal princes' hunt from Melton Mowbray in one of the skinfitting garments, shopkeepers have had continual streams of the prince's fashion followers demanding "yellow shirts."

WANT UNIFORM LAWS TO HELP CHILDREN

The program of the national child welfare committee of the American Legion was announced recently with the appointment of State Senator Sherman W. Child of Minneapolis, Minn., as vice chairman to be in charge of the legislative work of the committee.

The legislative phase of child welfare will be the most important part of the work this year, according to Miss Emma C. Puschner, director of the national child welfare division at national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind.

"The main objective will be uniform legislation in nearly every state in the Union," Miss Puschner said. The legislation will look to improve conditions not only of children of World war veterans, but children generally.

"The Legion will avoid any attitude of attempting to force legislation in any state, but Senator Child has drawn up a minimum legislative program that will be used as a guide, and Legion officials of each state will be requested to co-operate wholeheartedly with such state officials, legislators and committees as possible to obtain this minimum legislation.

"The program has four distinct points as follows:

"First, a good family desertion and non-support law.

"Second, a widowed mother's allowance law which will allow help to keep children in their own homes (in accordance with the financial ability of the community). There are 41 states that have a mother's pension or a mother's allowance law, but the law in each case has some serious defect. Usually the husband must die before aid is extended the family.

"Third, is a provision for the appointment of an unpaid county child welfare board of three or more members in each county to advise with the county attorney, probation officers, judges or public charities on individual cases. Very few states have unpaid county boards.

"Fourth, is a state children's bureau of one director who shall have the duty of appointing and advising the county child welfare boards and supervising the general administration of the law with regard to dependent, neglected and defective children."

Only Chinese Member of the Legion in U. S.

Jung Lim Tew, one of the owners of the Jung Lee laundry in Rochester, N. Y., is believed to be the only Chinese member of the American Legion in the United States.

"I am an American citizen, and because I like this country I enlisted in the army," Tew explained recently. His service in the army made him eligible for the Legion.

Born in New York city, Tew was taken to China by his parents when a baby and he remained there until he was eighteen years old, when he returned to America. He prospered in the laundry business and went back to China where he was married. During the World War Tew was a member of the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth infantry, serving at Camp Upton almost a year.

No Legs, But He Will Go

Among the Legionnaires who will show off for France next September will be Frank B. Roberts of Chase City, Va., who lost both legs as the result of war service. Roberts has arranged for an able bodied escort to help him over the rough spots and will sail on the I. M. M. liner "Pennland" from Hampton Roads, September 9, and return on the same ship from Antwerp, Belgium, on September 24. Roberts was an ambulance driver in the Twenty-ninth division during the World war.

NATIVE SECTION OF CITY IN HANDS OF SOUTHERN ARMY

Victorious Cantoneese Armies Are Now Practically In Control—Feverish Activities In the Foreign Quarters Noticeable As the Yellow Skinned Soldiers Approach the City Walls—The Chinese General Offered No Resistance From Within—Is Believed Shantung Defender of the City Was Won Over To the Cause of the Invaders.

The Chinese Nationalists have entered the native city of Shanghai. General Pi Shu-Chen, commander of the Northern forces in Shanghai, is reported to have taken refuge in the French concession.

The Cantoneese have cut the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

The defense of Shanghai by the Northern Chinese armies was merely a phase of a struggle to stem the conquering sweep of the Nationalist armies of the Cantoneese government whose capital now is at Hankow.

The fall of the city of the Southern or Nationalist armies, had been looked for momentarily, as the Northern forces had been hard pressed the past week and one by one strategic points fell into the hands of the attacking army.

The Nationalists also have done much "boring from within," at Shanghai. As the Nationalist troops came nearer the prize city, agitators became active, and only a few days ago a general strike was called to last until the Nationalists captured Shanghai. The strike in Shanghai last month was attributed to Cantoneese agitators. It was quelled largely by the drastic method of summarily beheading agitators.

The capture of Lunghwa, which has been Shantungese military headquarters for the Shanghai area of occupation, means that Shanghai is virtually in Nationalist hands and that they will be able to walk into the Chinese sections of the city whenever they desire.

Another northern setback also took place in the capture of Changchow by the Cantoneese, who thus have cut the Nanking-Shanghai railway, isolating the Shantungese in the Shanghai region.

The later stages of the advance on Shanghai from the south have been almost bloodless, although firing was clearly audible in the outlying sections of the settlements Sunday night.

Thousands of retreating Shantungese passed around Shanghai Sunday.

Thousands of armed and unarmed soldiers are swarming thru the country outside the foreign settlements and every precaution has been taken to keep them out. Indications Sunday night were that there would be no fighting close to Shanghai.

General Pi Shu-Chen, the Shantung defender of Shanghai, it is rumored, has gone over to the Cantoneese. It is stated that he sent a representative to General Ho Ying Ching, the southern commander, to discuss the conclusion of a truce in order to avoid fighting in the Shanghai area.

This, in connection with the fact that Shantung forces have made no attempt to hold the southern line descending on Shanghai, tends to confirm the belief in foreign military and well informed Chinese circles that some arrangement has been made regarding Shanghai between General Chang Kai-Shek, the Cantoneese commander in chief and General Chan Tsung-Chang, governor of Shanghai, whose whereabouts recently has been a mystery. Everything points to such an arrangement and there is even the possibility that there is an understanding between General Chang Kai-Shek and Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord.

Seven thousand retreating Shantung soldiers arrived outside the French concession Sunday, but made no attempt to enter, it was their presence that caused the French to close their wire barriers. British troops, began Monday to occupy the more remote British houses which are outside the settlement boundary.

The industrial situation in the city remains unchanged. Strikes show no signs of spreading.

The foreign forces available under the protection of the international settlement in Shanghai, now number about 20,000 trained men, the greater portion of which are British.

The American force consists of 1800 marines and 2000 blue jackets, but these men so far have been kept aboard U. S. warships and transports in the harbor.

The Japanese have 3000 fighting men in Shanghai and the French a somewhat smaller force.

Twenty-one warships of five foreign countries are lying off Shanghai ready to protect foreign lives and property.

Shanghai, China's biggest port, has a foreign population of nearly 40,000 persons, 3000 of whom are Americans. There are heavy foreign investments, Chinese in the city number 1,500,000.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Kiaunkiang, Kiangsi, as the result of rioting last Thursday between rival factions of the Nationalist party in which several persons were killed and wounded. The headquarters of the labor union, which is the extremist section of the Kuomintang, was wrecked. International women's day was celebrated in Nanking with mass meetings in which thousands of women participated.

Chief slogans at the meeting were "Equality of the Sexes," "Down with polygamy," "Down with infant marriage," "We want freedom of marriage and divorce" "Women remarrying should not be despised" and "Women should join in the revolution."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

McArthur—A second charge of murder has been filed by Prosecutor W. J. Jones, against Arthur Stout, who is to go on trial for the alleged slaying last November of his stepmother, Mrs. William Stout.

Cincinnati—A dead admirer, a wounded widow and a rejected suitor at large are the principals of a shooting tragedy Saturday night at the rooming house of Mrs. Belle Likes.

New Lexington—Funeral services were held today for James F. Conley 81, who died Saturday. His father, J. M. Conley was the founder of New Lexington and built the first house in 1817.

Youngstown—Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wilson are back from Cleveland minus diamond rings valued at $1,000 which was stolen from them in the Hotel Statler. A prowler who is supposed to have used a pass key ransacked five suites in the hotel and went off with $2,000 in cash and jewelry without awakening his victims.

Columbus—Governor Donahey disposed today of four more acts passed by the general assembly on which the ten day period for executive consideration elapses at midnight tonight.

He signed two of the measures and decided to let the other two become law without his signature.

The Roberts-Keifer act, making Armistice day, November 11, a holiday, was signed "with mental reservations."

DROWNED IN LITTLE WALNUT AT ASHVILLE

Ernest Eshman Lost His Life While at Work on C. & H. Railroad Bridge.

Ernest Eshman, aged 22, a young man employed by Ferguson & Edmondston, C. & H., construction contractors, was drowned in Little Walnut creek, at Ashville Saturday night about 12 o'clock.

He had gone out on a trestle to push some driftwood away, lost his balance fell in to the turbulent stream and was drowned. His body was carried down stream and was not recovered. Nothing is known of the family of the deceased, other than that he hailed from the state of Kentucky.

This is the second drowning at the same place in three months. William Truex lost his life there January 19, while pushing ice away. His body has not been recovered.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT TO YOUNG MAN

Rudolph Justice Will Lose Sight of Right Eye as Result of Bullet Wound.

Rudolph Justice, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Justice, a student in the high school, while out along Hargus creek Saturday afternoon near his home, met with a serious accident. He was handling a revolver and in some way discharged the weapon and the bullet entered his right eye. He was removed to the home of Marsh Barnes and Dr. D. V. Courtwright was called and he ordered the boy taken to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, for treatment. The boy is in a serious condition and will lose the sight of his right eye.

Reports from the hospital are that there are no hopes for his recovery. The X-Ray examination revealed that the ball passed straight thru the brain and lodged at the back of his head. The ball was not extracted.

A GOOD ADDRESS.

Sunday night at the First Methodist Episcopal church, despite the downpour of rain, a large congregation greeted Mayor George M. Fitzpatrick, who delivered an interesting address on "Circleville and What She is to You."

BANDITS WERE THORO.

Police Sergeant John Burns, of Chillicothe, has recovered from a scare that was unusual in the life of a policeman. It all happened when a man clad in B. V. D.'s, crept in to police station and made for the sergeant's desk.

The sergeant's pulse became normal however, when the man in question, Elias Fennessey, said he had been held up by two bandits, forced into their machine and taken to the City park where they stripped him of his clothes and $16 in bills.

Dodging thru streets and alleys, Fennessey finally made his way to police station. A neighbor took him home.

FLOOD COMING SCIOTO RIVER ON A RAMPAGE

River Road Inpassable, Traffic West of the River Cut Off —18 Foot Rise Expected.

Old Scioto has been acting mighty had in the past twenty-four hours. It has reached a stage of thirteen feet, six inches. Up to Sunday evening the rise of the river on the gauge showed six feet and Monday morning, four more feet of water was added. It will be eighteen feet by Tuesday morning if Weather Observer Alexander's prediction comes true. Local weather Observer Dr. H. C. Clarke was advised of this prediction this morning.

This is the highest stage the river has reached since the memorable flood of 1913, when the record of 24 feet was reached. The rise in the river here may go even higher than predicted, as the high levees and banks of dirt thrown along the east bank by the construction of the Chesapeake & Hocking railroad company, have virtually confined the river in a much narrower channel than it was before.

The waters will cut off a majority of the people in the western part of the county, as traffic on the roads has been cut off at Fox and also the road west of the river bridge, which floods at the twelve foot stage. Back water now covers the road at the six mile bridge north of this city on the Columbus pike, making it necessary to go by the way of Ashville to reach Columbus. The roads south of the city are still passable, but if the river goes over the eighteen foot stage, the Chillicothe pike will be blocked.

Construction work on the new rail road on the east side of the city from the Lindsey farm just north of this city to the southern corporation line has ceased. How much damage has been done cannot now be estimated. If the flood is not followed by high winds, there will not be much damage. All the tributaries of the Scioto are running bank full and this will add a considerable volume of water to the river in its lower stretches.

The rainfall in this section in the past twenty-four hours was one inch and twenty-seven hundredths.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Corpus Proceeding—Louis Swank, of Darbyville, sentenced to the county jail by Justice Friece for fifteen days last Friday for keeping his child out of school, beyond the limit of a permit, was released by Judge Adkins from jail Saturday on a habeas corpus proceeding filed by Attorney Thomas Renick. The probate court found the commitment defective in that no fine was assessed against the prisoner.

Merl Smith Trial On.—Merl Smith, charged with robbery, having it is alleged heldup Fred Howard and taking from him the sum of $206, in Seyfert park, is being heard in common pleas court. Owing to the high waters a number of the jurymen called could not reach the court house and the matter of securing a jury had to be put off.

Judge E. A. Brown and Meeker Terwilliger represents the State; M. C. Seyfert Jr., C. A. Leist of this city, and Mr. Ricketts, of Columbus, the defendant.

Normal Waistline Slowly Returning

Divides Silhouette Into Two Units Once More—Dolman Outline.

There is one sharp distinction between the slender silhouette as it shall be practiced this spring and the slim outline which was in vogue several years ago—in the older versions the slender contour was completely uninterrupted; in the modern interpretation there is to be a clearly marked waistline placed at the normal sphere or just below it. This tendency to raise and mark the waistline, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, is one which has been going on for several years. Since feminine styles have been gradually returning to favor the waistline has not only become more pronounced but has been gradually and certainly ascending.
Despite occasional mid-season rebuffs its progress has been satisfactory and the prognosis of the mode is that during the coming season it will occupy a normal or nearly normal line and, while it may not disturb the silhouette as it did in the days of waspish waists.
It is nevertheless to be uncompromisingly marked.

The matter of the waistline being decided, it becomes evident that emphasizing it divides the silhouette into two units once more, bodice and skirt. You will recollect the once modish mold-and-flare outline. It consisted of a close-fitting bodice and a skirt which was full all the way and terminated in a hem-line flare. Despite the eclipse of the flare and the passing of the molded bodice, the spring season's smart outline may be again referred to as the mold-and-flare. Only this season it is the skirt that is molded while the bodice is full.
The general effect is that of a dolman outline. The bodice fullness is principally arrived at by means of bloused treatments, although not infrequently the chic bolero effect of last season is resorted to. This bolero, incidentally, as well as an emphasis upon multiple ette, Emphasizing Natural Waistline.

belts, is one of the approved manners of stressing the high waistline. Box and side plaits, as well as occasional flat tiers, will be Paris features on the new spring skirts, but they will always be sufficiently delicate to maintain the semi-conforming outline of the skirt.

Spring's color list, like the flowers of the early months, are pale and delicate—again pastel tones for sports and daytime wear. Gray is one of the leaders in pearl and silver, basically speaking, and from those two points one may radiate widely in the allies of these shades. Palest green, like the wing of a dragon fly, is another important color, and banana, such as Premet shows, is important along with pinks. Porcelain blue is prominent in the blue list. Champagne and duck greens are to be noted and pervenche creeps in.

Smart Gowns Aglitter With Gold and Silver

Nothing is considered too glittering this season, and thus the gown combined of gold and silver lame is not deemed too blatant. One such gown combines a silver lame bodice of long-waisted lines with slender sleeves and a silver lame skirt adorned with four plaited and scalloped panels of gold lame. The neckline of this gown is cut square in front and slightly rounded at the back. A flat girdle of silver extends about the waistline.

Handmade Dresses From Paris
Among the newest frocks from Paris are one-piece models made entirely by hand. Hand-pressed plaits, fine tucks, draw-work and embroidery done in infinitesimal stitches are effective methods of decoration which contribute to the general effect of exquisiteness.

14 VICTIMS OF SNIPERS IN RIOTING

U. S. Marines Ready To Protect American Settlement
From Invaders.

Shanghai, March 22.—(UP.)
—Casualties on the first day of the Cantonese occupation of Shanghai totalled 14 foreigners and 200 Chinese.

One punjabi (British Indian soldier) was killed, and four unjabis were wounded.

Four white British soldiers were wounded. One sikh, (British Indian policeman), three special policemen and one Jan-anese were wounded.

United States marines were billed in Shanghai Monday ready to cope with any situation resulting from the capture of the native section of the city by the Cantonese Nationalists. Troops of other nations also patrolled the city.

The 1,500 American marines were divided into eight units, three of which were stationed in western districts of the settlement and five in the Yangtze-Poo area. Patrols were guarding the power plant in the Yangtze-Poo area, which was conceded to be the most dangerous.

"Tell the folks at home that we are on the job," Colonel Hill, commanding the marine unit,
told the United Press.

"We are happy that we are landed and we are eager and ready to do our utmost to protect Americans."

GOV. DONAHEY ON ELECTION REFORMS

Columbus, March 22.—(UP.)
—Governor Donahey today indicated he would support an initiated measure dealing with election law reforms unless the state legislature acts on his recommendations for permanent registration and similar changes.

In a statement to the Ohio
League of Women Voters, Governor Donahey said:
"I am deeply interested in election reform and if the general assembly does not provide it I hope the people will initiate measures to bring it about and I will lend such a movement all of the aid and encouragement possible."

Theory About Eyelashes

English eyelashes again are being sacrificed. The vogue in London is to have every other eyelash pulled out on the theory that the ones left in position become longer, thicker and more conspicuous generally.—A. P.

POLICE DEPARTMENT

Wesley M. Justus reported the theft of his automobile from in-front of Emmett Chapel, where he had parked it Monday afternoon. Chief Warner spent nearly $5 telephoning to surrounding cities. The machine was finally located at the Clifton garage in West Main street where it had been taken, the police report, to secure a debt, without due process of law. Justus has taken the matter up with his attorney, C. A.
Leist.

Odd Metal Turns on Light

Selenium, a peculiar metal whose sensitivity to light is high, is used as a means of turning on and off street lamps and electric signs when darkness comes and goes. A small quantity of it in a selenium cell attached to the lamp or sign performs the necessary function.
